The dispatches state that Secretary Root of the v: department has taken prompt action in the matter of the published interview of General Frank D. Baldwin, commander of the department of Colorado, in which that officer spoke of the negro and Filipinos as if they were no better than dogs. The objectionable language was published under a Denver date on the day it was supposed to have been uttered. The secretary has taken no action further than to address a note to General Baldwin asking for an explanation. It is needless to say that provided the quoted language is found to be true there will be a new man in command of the department of Colorado immediately. This is a republican administration and it is working for the best interests of the entire epople regardless of race or color.

INSURING AGAINST BAD DEBTS.

Several recent failures in the busiorid have again called attention to the possibility of minimizing the effect of such failures by means of credit Insurance. Almost every kind of catastrophe is now shorn of its full powers of destruction by means of insurance of one kind or another. Why not deal with the catastrophe of insolvency in the same way?

The first attempt to use credit insurance in this way was made in England and in France about 200 years ago. Perhaps because it lacked the information which is now furnished by mercantile agencies the credit insurance companies of century before last did not succeed. Of late years the credit insurance idea has been revived and has met with better luck. Its application to ordinary losses from ordinary insolvency and to the extraordinary conditions resulting from extraordinary failures cannot but be of interest both to the processor of political economy and to the practical business
